Store is "cleaning up 'that students are forced to pay exorbitant prices for books and supplies at this place. Wishing to check on the reports and present a true picture of the situation, THY KERNEL has conducted an investigation to learn and publish the facts in the matter.

The store under its present management was installed in 1931 with the University having some $50,000 invested in the inventory and an agreement was reached whereby the school was to receive 10 per cent of the gross sales as a te turn on this investment.

Under this plan, which was in effect from 1931 to 1937, and which incidently paid off that $50,000, new text books were sold at list price, second hand books for 66 and two-thirds per cent to 70 per cent of the list price and used books hought for 40 per cent of the list price. Beginning in 1938 the University agreed to lower its percentage to seven and one-half and the rate paid for used books was raised to 50 per cent of the list price. There are few if any stores in the country that allow such a high rate for second land books. Northwestern University has two stores that pay 33 and one-third and Purdue has two that offer 40 per cent.

The list price of all books published in the United States may be verified by consulting Wilson's U. S. Catalogue that can be found in any public library. These prices are set by the publishers when a book is placed on the market and are complied with without exception. Other school supplies, athletic goods and the like are sold at regular retail prices and often below.

Some companies have even threatened to withdraw their products unless prices were raised to compare with those of local merchants.

According to the above facts, which should speak for themselves, the Book Store is not run on a profiteering basis. It was established here as a convenience and service to the members and faculty of the University of Kentucky.

To those faculty members and research men connected with the College of Agriculture at the University, it means the realization of many mouths of untiring work. For, besides educating 529 students for service in the various divisions of farm and home work, this college houses two other departments of value to the state and its CITIZCHS

The experiment station, directing the Robinson and Princeton sub-stations, is sponsoring , far-reaching aids to Kentucky farmers in the helds of fruit growing, dairving, and soil improvements. In the research chemistry department of this division, work of national renown is being conducted by Dr. Statie Erickson with food elements.

Under supervision of the third department, the Agricultural Extension Service, lectures on farm and home subjects are given in every county of the state by field agents and home demonstration agents. The organization of 40,000 prospective farmers and farmers' wives over the state into 4-H club exemplifies another worthy achievement.

Newspapers throughout Kentucky devote entile sections to announcements from our College of Agriculture, yet we students, perhaps because we are 100 close to appreciate fully the achievements, continue to watch eagerly more sensational but less worthy campus developments.

Too seldom do we realize the excellent work this college is contributing to the life of the agricultural state of Kentucky.

Theory Plus Practice

A proaches for graduation, and the ultimate surge of college-trained men and women into the world looking for jobs, a project instigated three years ago by students at Grinnell College, lowa, prooves worthy of considera-

The follow-up of a course in vocational study at the college, this job survey project includes plans for an annual trip to Chicago. Once in the city the students gather at a hotel to plan their daily interviews. Then they scatter to seek information from bankers, lawyers' offices, big industrial plants, and key professional men. Meeting a hig employer and discussing with him some of the real difficulties of a job is a new experience for many students.

Questions are asked about employee training programs, qualities which employers desire in the modern college graduate, and information on employment trends. They gather again at the end of the day to discuss the methods of approach which brought favorable results from husiness men. On returning, these reports are disseminated among the students who did not make the trip.

When college students, looking for jobs, first face the down-to-earth atmosphere of a business office and are turned away, too often they lose hope. Since no bed of roses awaits the average individual in applying for a position, a combination of practical theory with practical experience in college should make for a more thorough preparation for after-school life.

Behind The Eckdahl

Wr. READ with interest Mr. George Lamason's recent item concerning his proposed improvement on typewriters. We have been associated with typewriters for something like four years, more or less, and no matter how gently and considerately we treat a machine it sooner or later gets the better of us.

Now take this typewriter we're using. For the last three years we haven't been able to type a letter on the fifth of the month, as the five key sticks. It's not just an ordinary stick. Our five key is stuck so bad that you would have to hit it with a hammer to get any results. We tried having it cleaned and adjusted, but it does no good-the key will work until the fifth of the next month and then it is stuck again,

A columnist friend of ours once bought a new typewriter. He hadn't used it more than a month before the "I" key was stuck fast, which made the machine useless as far as our friend

Something should also be done about typewriter ribbous. Every time we attempt to change a ribbon, it slowly but surely becomes unwound from the spool and wound around us. Once, while alone at home we tried to change a ribbon. We ended up tied to our chair and had to remain stains quo for five hours and 37 minutes until the family returned and cut us free.

WOMAN DRAWS SENTENCES TOTALING 500 YEARS -Headline in Lexington Herald (Quite an artist, we'd sav.)

While scanning the exchange papers the other day we happened to run across the following!

I love a Kappa Kappa.

I am verv verv happa.

I overlook her mappa. I'm no sappa.

Inspired by the sentiment of the poem, we immediately sat down and dashed off:

I love a Kappa Delta. Although she looks like hellta.

For her father does right wellta.

He owns a bank.

SUDDEN SINISTER THOUGHT: There are only 33 more school days until final exams.

Mr. Forrest Barker writes as follows: "After seeing a run in a pair of those new red colored stockings repaired successfully by the application of some lipstick just under the parted ilireads, I am led to believe that women prefer the reddish line because they can save the embarcassment of a run and ruin the vision of nearby males at the same time."

. Add definition of a hick town. We suspect this one comes from Walter Winchell too. "A hick town is a place where if a girl goes out with a man old enough to be her father she is his daughter."

. "Collapsible mental chairs were in use during the middle ages."

SPLURGING through with their social splash of the year, the PiKaps capped the pre-holiday festivities with a neat swing session in the gym Saturday night. With a good crowd, effective lights, and very danceable music, the boys from Transylvania way put forth one of the best of the better terpischorean tangles of the year. Calling 'Em Wild

FROM the waters of the Eastern Kentucky Teachers College swimming hole Saturday emerged the Wildcats, third time chamvions among Kentucky's intercollegiate swimmers, and once again the commonwealth's aquatic crown rested with the state university that does not own a swimming pool.

A wave of five firsts, added with a generous dash of seconds and thirds, washed 73 points onto the Blue column of the scorer's sheet. Eastern pulled to second position with a tucky follers were: Breckenridge total of 32 markers, trailed by Berea with 28 and Morris, alias Morehead, with 11. During the elapse of time required for the water fiesta, seven state records were discarded and redecorated with better times.

This temporarily appeased the wrath of the record-hunters and the uprising rethe evening's program — came the revolution and from that point to ceded. With the opening event of the end of the spectacle, record times were annihilated with monotonous regularity.

Records Tumble

The time for the 300-yard medley reiny was first revamped by am-phibious 'Cats Hillenmeyer, Hinkeover the watery trail of 3:37.4. Next-Begley of Berea paced the 220-yard freestylists to a record with a watch recording of 2:50.7. In order be-hind the Mountaineer were Reid. Huber and Spears of the Bluc ciad clan. Morris, the Morehead team, showed his contempt for records by hitting a new low in the 50-yard free style of :24.5. Dickman of Eastern flashed the most graceful form to capture the proffered diving points, outscoring 'Cats Curtis and Sharp, who captured second and fourth places, respectively.

The remainder of the events were copped by Kntucky, all in reord fairly serviceable 20-yard practice tims. Lloyd Ramsey took the 100-yard free style in :57.3 followed by schools swim. This would at least yard free style in :57.3 followed by Frank Roberts. Scott annexed winning back stroke points and even though his time was short of his afternoon's presentation, bettered the old state mark. Hillenmeyer stroked to a second in this event. Hinkebein demonstrated his superiority over the 200-yard breaststroke entrants with a time of 2:57.4, slicing a generous portion off his own former record time. To conclude the tournament, the team of Davis. Reld, Ramsey and Roberts bested the record time with a clocking of

Dave Rogan Lost To Thinlies For Rest Of Year Due To Scholastic Trouble

The University track team hopes for another undefeated season were handed a siekening biow Saturday when Dave Rogan, distance runner supreme, was declared ineligible due to scholastic illness, making him iost to the team for the year.

Holder of the Southeastern conference record times for the 880 and mile runs, Rogan had been expected to Coach Joe Rupert to pick up enough points in the quarter, haif and mile races to pull Kentucky through to several tight wins over the schedule's opposition. The ineligibility came as a result of his failure to make up a required .7 of a credit and now there is apparently no chance of the lagging credit tary of the national youth section, being made up. being made up.

The state of the third it isn't a department child. The student fancy that they travel a distance to see it in action, off the program. Swimming is here to stay even though practice must be in alien water. So until the future of campuswimming teams are biighted, it would be to the mutual advantage of all concerned if available practice space could be obtained for this robust three-year old orphan sport.

A Solution?

As pools in Lexington are an exception rather than a rule, possibly the greatest runner to attend the University. As a sopiomore he shattered the time for the Southeastern conference mile and last year returned to lower his town time in the event and to establish a new low for the haif-mile dish a new low for the haif-mile of the mile stands at 4:16.3 and his half-mile clocking is 1:54.
